CAMPAGNA MOTORS announces the location of its new head quarters in Boucherville, QC. After looking at several locations in the USA and Canada, the company has decided to establish a new plant in Boucherville, QC, in the suburb of Montreal.

The plant, a 23,500 sq. foot facility will include the assembly line, the research and development facility and all sales, marketing and administrative offices for North America. The location will also boast a showroom and service center to display, sell and service local customers in the Montreal area.

André Morissette, CEO of CAMPAGNA MOTORS said “This new facility will allow us to be closer to the business, have a better control on operation and project an image of a quality and innovative company”

The conditions are all there for a successful world-class manufacturer says Mr. Morissette. “There is no reason why this company can’t succeed on a world-wide level and stay close to its foundation. Québec and the great region of Montréal are home to a lot of creative talent, both in engineering, design, marketing and sales. We can conquer the world by being creative, innovative, motivated and making niche products.”

The company plans to restart the production of the T-REX in the middle of summer and be able to deliver by the fall of 2008 its first 2009 units. The V13R, the company other model of 3 wheel vehicle, will be available shortly after; also as a 2009 model. The total production for 2009 should be around 300 vehicles; mainly for the United-States, Canada and the Middle-East.

CAMPAGNA offers its models mainly in North America through a network of dealers; most of them in the USA. CAMPAGNA is planning on expanding its North American dealer network and stepping into other regions of the world that have shown interest in our product. Among those regions are the middle-east, Europe and some countries in Asia also have shown interest and potential.

CAMPAGNA MOTORS has projects to develop green vehicles in the future.
